Bobby Hartin -- broadcaster, bar and grill owner, unabashed South Carolina football fan -- today celebrates his 10th anniversary as a Charleston radio talk show host with a live broadcast from, of course, Bobby Hartin's.

"The public is invited to attend," said radio sidekick Darren Goldwater. "Come one, come all."

Borrowing from another talk show host, David Letterman, we at Top of the Second seek to explain The Top 10 Reasons Bobby Hartin Has Lasted 10 Years On The Air:

10. Guest list regularly includes astute commentary from Esso Club bartenders and local attorney Stanley Feldman.

9. Station owner Gil Kirkman can't find anyone else to work for $3.75 an hour plus all the golf he can play.

8. Two words: Hooters girls.

7. Ideal career path for ex-South Carolina Gamecock cheerleader.

6. Listeners simply can't get enough of those Paul The Polar Bear commercials.

5. Ratings, schmatings!

4. Frequent appearances by insightful, witty Post and Courier staffers.

3. Miraculously, videotape of that 1970s sorority house incident has yet to surface online.

2. Already chased Michael Graham out of town and will easily outlast Rocky D, too.

And the No. 1 reason Bobby Hartin has lasted 10 years on the air ...

College football talk sells, buddy, no matter who's doing the talking!
